"Shumaker is committed to smart growth in Pasco County. With Matthew serving in this leadership role, he will be a difference maker in his hometown by ensuring new developments are in the best interest of all," said Ron Christaldi, Shumaker's Tampa Managing Partner and President/CEO of Shumaker Advisors Florida.

"As more people move to Pasco, it is a dynamic and exciting time," Matthew said. "It is a tremendous honor to have the opportunity to help create the vision for our community, so that it keeps its character and is a great place to live for generations to come."

Matthew was born and raised in Pasco County, and he is currently the city attorney for Zephyrhills and a Hearing Officer for Pasco County. At Shumaker, he serves on the Public Policy and Government Affairs Service Line and provides legal guidance to clients in business, real estate, family, and estate planning.

In February, Shumaker announced that Mathew and Attorney Danny Burgess joined the firm to expand legal work in Pasco County.
