Early Dispute Resolution, Construction Law Today Podcast, Episode 27

Shumaker Partners Brett Henson and Peter Silverman were guests on the "Construction Law Today" podcast discussing Early Dispute Resolution (EDR) — a form of alternative dispute resolution well suited to resolve construction industry disputes. EDR seeks to resolve complex commercial disputes quickly and on a principled basis. Brett and Peter describe the goals of EDR, its use in practice and some aspirational commentary about EDR becoming the standard resolution practice for a wider range of construction disputes. You can listen to the full episode here.

To learn more about EDR, visit the Early Dispute Resolution Institute found here.

Construction Law Today is the Podcast of the ABA Forum on Construction Law hosted by David Suchar. The Forum is pleased to present a series of podcasts on various construction law topics. David engages Forum members in conversation on subjects of practical and academic interest to construction lawyers.
