An intellectual property (IP) lawyer, Tom has represented some of the world's premier multinational corporations on both the offensive and defensive sides of trademark, patent, and copyright law disputes. He represents and counsels technology clients in a wide range of IP matters, including pre-suit diligence, fact and expert discovery, motion practice, depositions, and at trial. He has shepherded the negotiation of numerous agreements and transactions relating to all forms of IP.

His practice experience includes:

- Representing clients in federal courts across the country, including California, Delaware, Texas, and Nevada
- Cases involving advanced technologies, including 3G/4G communications, database management systems, semiconductor technology, and consumer products
- Advising defense-related companies on navigating export controls
- Serving defense contractors and sub-contractors, including in the areas of military equipment (land, air, sea, and cyber), as well as the fast-developing regulatory framework for artificial intelligence
- Advising clients on registering with the Directorate of Defense Trade Controls, developing compliance programs, and negotiating agreements between prime and sub-
