Douglas A. Cherry Appointed to The Florida Bar's Committee on Cybersecurity and Privacy Law

SARASOTA, FL — Shumaker Partner and Technology Business Sector Chair Douglas A. Cherry has been appointed to the recently formed Committee on Cybersecurity and Privacy Law of The Florida Bar, where he will help further the committee's mission to facilitate attorney awareness of cyber risks on a continuing basis.

"Being appointed to the Committee on Cybersecurity and Privacy Law is a privilege that comes with profound responsibility considering the devastating effects cyber piracy has had, and will continue to have, on our nation's economy and the practice of law. It's a chance to safeguard the pillars of justice by looking at ways we can help fortify the legal profession and protect client information and confidences against these serious and evolving threats in the digital age," Doug said.

The Committee on Cybersecurity and Privacy Law will work jointly with the Technology Committee and other committees to develop a series of firm- or attorney-appropriate cybersecurity best practices and to provide Florida attorneys with a continuously updated resource of cybersecurity law and regulations, news events, and focused educational seminars. In addition, the committee intends to provide Florida attorneys with resources addressing other state's cybersecurity privacy laws and the European Economic Association's cross-border General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

Board Certified in Intellectual Property (IP) Law, Doug is known for taking complex principles and making them understandable for his clients. His areas of concentration include IP (patent, copyright, trademark, trade secret, publicity rights, and unfair competition) consulting, acquisition, licensing, and litigation, as well as technology, cybersecurity, and data breach law. Doug represents corporations, municipalities, nonprofits, start-ups, and entrepreneurs in a variety of industries, including technology, health care, law enforcement, and manufacturing.
