

Donovan Brown

OF COUNSEL

Having worked in government affairs since the early 2000s when he served as a special assistant to former Governor Jeb Bush, Donovan went on to practice law for two national firms, where he focused on regulatory, corporate transactional, and administrative law. Donovan also served as regional counsel for state government relations for a national trade association, where he managed government relations and public affairs in numerous states throughout the Southeastern United States.

Donovan has held leadership capacities on various state and industry commissions and boards, including serving in roles as:

- Chair of the Financial Services Council at the Associated Industries of Florida
- Member of the Florida Automated Vehicles Policy Work Group
- Member of the University of Florida Law Alumni Council and serves on the board of a local charity
